ASTRAL APPOINTMENT: Bishop Saurian T. Tanhäuser Arrives

We welcome Bishop Saurian T. Tanhäuser, esteemed Cartographer of Worlds, into terrestrial communion. Arriving from the Tanhäusser Gates—a corridor not charted by Earth's observatories—he brings knowledge of geospatial anomalies, stellar cartographies, and transdimensional borderlands. His initial assignments include mapping Central America and all underwater freshwater zones.

"Where do I come from? I come from a door that opens both ways. My task is to map what should not exist—and then show you where it hides."

— Bishop Saurian T. Tanhäuser, AL-4

PUBLIC INQUIRY: Cannibalism in Doctrinal Context

Numerous questions have emerged regarding the Church's stance on cannibalism, particularly in relation to alien hybridization rites and esoteric nutrient transference.

We clarify: the Church has no opinion. We are ambivalent on cannibalism. And don't particularly care.

NEW & UPCOMING: Encyclical Update

The recent Encyclical, *On the Pilgrimage: A Warning and a Preparation, has sparked discussion across all Ascension Levels. We urge members to re-read the final paragraph in ultraviolet.

A new Encyclical is currently being composed by the Pontifax Extraterror. Working title: "A Caution to The Eager."

MEMBER CONTRIBUTION: "My Encounter with Reptilians at Machu Picchu"

Submitted by Deacon Hester C., AL-2

"The sun was behind me. So were the guides. I entered the ruined chamber alone. What stood before me was not stone. It blinked. They were already there. Watching. Counting."

I froze. Not out of fear, but recognition. The figures were tall—at least seven feet—with skin that shimmered like obsidian under water. They did not move toward me, but I felt their message enter my mind directly: "You were expected."

One pointed to the stones beneath my feet, and suddenly the floor rearranged itself—lightly shifting, breathing. I dropped to my knees. It wasn't Machu Picchu I stood on—it was a threshold. And beyond it, something waited.
